Why British International School Riyadh chose LiteracyPlanet

British International School Riyadh is an international co-educational school located in Riyadh, the capital and most populous city of Saudi Arabia. Catering for English-speaking students of 55 different nationalities from ages three to 18, this school prides itself on embracing and celebrating cultural diversity, while providing the best opportunities for students through innovative, dedicated teaching programs.

British International School Riyadh originally came into contact with LiteracyPlanet through the program's popular Word Mania competition. The school was looking for a teaching tool that would be able to help students of all ages and abilities improve their English skills, by leveraging the technological assets and digital practices that have already been embedded into their everyday learning programs.

With students actively encouraged to embrace digital learning opportunities, teachers were looking for a program that would be effective, engaging and easy to understand so they would be saving time rather than spend hours trying to interpret data.

LiteracyPlanet provided the perfect fit for British International School Riyadh. Teachers now have access to a wide range of curriculum-aligned exercises that students love completing.

How the school uses LiteracyPlanet

British International School Riyadh is currently using LiteracyPlanet to provide students with a fun and engaging way to improve their English literacy skills. LiteracyPlanet exercises are embedded seamlessly into student's classes and provide the perfect way to break up the course work.

Students from Year 1 to 6 use custom spelling exercises every week. These exercises foster crucial competencies for student development without student's realising it. Weekly point total leaders are recorded and high performing students are encouraged to complete more exercises with certificates. Students enjoy competing in activities with their friends, as well as challenging students from all around the world in the LiteracyPlanet games section.

Teachers have enjoyed implementing LiteracyPlanet in class, and appreciate the ability to instantly assign students a range of curriculum-aligned, high-quality exercises.

“The children enjoyed learning grammar by playing a wide-range of fun and challenging games.”

Positive student outcomes

Students across the school love LiteracyPlanet's unique, fun, engaging style which helps them learn important English literacy skills without even realising it. One student who is particularly smitten with the program is Edward, a Year 2 student who has been using LiteracyPlanet on a daily basis.

Other than the exercises assigned in class, Edward loves playing Word Mania in his spare time and feels a sense of pride whenever he can build a long word. Edward also loves putting his word-building abilities to the test when he challenges students from his school and all around the world, and this gives him a great sense of pride.
